

The Ministry of the Russian Federation for Civil Defence, Emergencies and Elimination of Consequences of Natural Disasters

12.11.2020 00:11

Daily operational forecast for November 12, 2020

Image not found or type unknown

The operational forecast of possible emergency situations for November 12, 2020 on the territory of the Russian Federation is determined by the passage of 3 cyclones, 3 anticyclones and the atmospheric fronts.

The accidents including the disruption of life support systems, all modes of transport, power lines breakage are forecast:

in the Siberian Federal District on the territory of the Republic of Khakassia, the Krasnoyarsk Territory and the Tomsk Region (wet snow, heavy snow and black ice in some areas, black ice on the roads, wind gusts up to 15-24 m/s); in the Southern Federal District, in the Krasnodar Territory (wind increase up to 20 m/s).

The increase of thermal anomalies, single foci of natural fires (including counter fires of dry vegetation), foci and natural fires are forecast (caused by non-compliance with fire safety requirements; high fire hazard class, gusty winds):

in the Far Eastern Federal District (Primorsky Territory);

in the Southern Federal District (Volgograd, Astrakhan regions); in the North Caucasian Federal District (Republic of Dagestan, Kabardino-Balkar Republic, Republic of North Ossetia-Alania, Republic of Ingushetia, Chechen Republic, Stavropol Territory).

The landslides, landslips, subsidence of soil in the mountainous and foothill areas are forecast in the North Caucasian Federal and Southern Federal district.

The information was prepared based on the data of the Hydrometeorological Center of Russia and the All-Russian Research Institute of Civil Defence and Emergencies (FC).