Three children were evacuated from a car in the Korsakovsky district of the Sakhalin Region

On Sakhalin, on the 21 km of the Okhotskoye - Cape Svobodny highway (Korsakovsky district), a car got stuck in a snow drift and got stuck in which there were three children and a driver.

To search for and evacuate the victims, a duty shift from the search and rescue unit from the village of Okhotskoye was sent. Rescuers spent almost 3.5 hours searching for those "brought into the snowdrift", the victims were found. As it turned out, the father and his children (4, 11 and 17 years old) went fishing. Then we went home, but without having driven a few hundred meters, we got into a snowy line and could not get out on our own. the children were taken to the base of the search and rescue unit in the settlement of Okhotsk. The guys got warm, ate and met with the relatives who came for them. The rescued children did not need medical help.
